FRIDAY, MARCH 28.

To the Editors of the Illinois Journal:

The associated, free, Anti-Nebraska press of the State of Illinois, in a convention held in Decatur on the 22d day of February, A. D. 1856, did see proper to appoint me one of a Central Committee. The convention comprised Democratic, Whig and Republican Editors. Men from the old world and from the new, were in this convention. Washington's birthday was a fit time for the men of freedom to meet and counsel together for the safety of the nation, and the rights of man; Decatur—suggestive name—a proper place.

This appointment is deemed by me the highest honor of my life. Let me lead the initiative in the acceptance of this honorable appointment. To be known in this great, growing, young State as a man who loves the Union, and its laws and human freedom, is a high honor indeed; and particularly so at this day and generation, when so many men in this free State now are trembling before the [illegible] and its aids and allies here. It is acknowledged at all times and places by me, that we owe an obligation to the Constitution of the United States; to the laws when constitutionally enacted in justice and without fraud, a respect. I am willing to give to the South all her rights under the Constitution—the bond—no more. Let the nation cut itself loose from slavery; stop its march on and over free soil. Freedom should have that. All our citizens, whether foreign or native, Protestant or Catholic, should enjoy all their sacred rights under the Constitution. My love for man and his rights is not bounded by lines of States, but includes the human race—nothing less.

In moments of peril to a nation, all its citizens owe it a great debt; owe it their intellectual capacities and physical powers when needed. The payment of that debt consists in having some opinion of men, measures and principles, and the free, bold expression of that opinion, and being at all times ready and willing to exhaust both for the good of the nation. This obligation is due from us to every individual in the State. This is due from every individual in the State to every other man. A man, therefore, who, in this crisis and in this age, has no opinion on slavery is a miserable thing; and he who dares not express that opinion respectfully, yet firmly, is not an uncommon one. I have an opinion on this Kansas-Nebraska fraud—this political trick—and as a man I propose to express it. This bill is opposed by me on several distinct grounds:

Firstly: Because it breaks down all the sacredness of all the compromises in and under the Constitution; it paves the way for the destruction of the Constitution.

Secondly: Because this great political fallacy was enacted, it had its germination in selfish ambition, for ulterior views, by Northern Senators, grasping for place, regardless of the dangers to the harmony and permanency of this Union; and

Thirdly: Because this cruel political fallacy will be sought to be demonstrated in behalf of slavery by the national brain, and enforced by the national arm, on the borders of Kansas, if not in her very bosom.

This whole enactment, the whole purpose from the moment of the conception of the bill, to the foul murder of Brown, has been a huge deception, an enormous fraud upon our people. Time in the future will clearly prove it, if further self-evident proof were needed. Subsequent disclosures will be startling.

A man who could not translate the actions of these men in this matter, must be dull indeed. The language reads thus: "You of the South make us President, and we will repeal the sacred Missouri Compromise. The people will cry Southern dishonor, but you can say, the North tendered the gift, and we here in the North will swell on the glories of popular sovereignty—that is the tub—you understand."

There is still a greater and more momentous reason why this bill should be repealed, or that repealing section should be repealed. It is the question, in short, of the spread of slavery.—This was and is the sole object of the bill—the purpose and import. In the year of 1784, Mr. Jefferson drew up, in substance, and had submitted to the Continental Congress the ordinance of the Northwest territory, excluding slavery from the national soil. This was renewed in 1785, and finally enacted by Congress in the year 1787, before the formation of the Constitution. The new Constitution was adopted in 1789, and among the first acts passed Congress affirmed the law—Washington signing the bill—excluding slavery from the national soil. Congress in 1807 passed a bill prohibiting the slave trade on the ocean, to take effect 1st day of January, 1808; and in 1819-20, Congress declared by law that the slave trade was piracy. In 1820, the Missouri Compromise was passed. Our fathers thus expelled and drove off slavery from the national territorial soil, and sank it from human view in the deep ocean; they always spoke hopeful, noble words for man's highest destiny, and that which was eternal in man, found in our fathers, friends, who had once pledged fortune, life, honor, and failed not. They could be trusted. Why should we be less brave? Why should we shirk a duty when we have the constitutional power? Are we cowards, and are [illegible]

[illegible] the policy of the fathers of '76 and '89, [illegible] the purposes of the Constitution, has been demonstrated many times and in as many ways. The very spirit of these times spoke for freedom and the rights of man, the sacred and inalienable rights of the whole human race. Not to oppose this bill is treason to the spirit of '76 and '89—to the race of man.

The great and good men in the early days of our country drove despotism—as they thought—from among us, making the whole Union ring with liberty. They found slavery everywhere; drove it into corners, walled it in, and put sentinels on the watch-towers: making Freedom National—Slavery sectional. Liberty was then the general rule founded on principle—slavery the special fact tolerated by necessity. Our fathers were compelled to tolerate a thing they did not wholly approve, for a better idea—this Union. Many of those sentinels have proved traitors, and the walls are threatened to be torn down, yes, are torn down, and now lie crumbling. The one great idea of the revolutionary men, was liberty throughout the whole land. There never was, nor can there ever be a plainer proposition than this. With the great majority of my countrymen, I had hoped to see this free land rid of the curse of Slavery, that it might be the home of the young, free millions that are to come up after us,—out of this and all other lands, the oppressed from Europe, fleeing from the tyrants there: but now there is danger that Slavery will wave its black flag over this whole free land where it was once honorably protected by the star-striped banner and by its maker.

The very idea of Slavery as a necessity, is cruel enough, but it is now urged as a principle to be made nationally perpetual throughout the country. Here is the proof. The Honorable Senator from Indiana, Mr. Pettit, said the eternal truths of the Declaration of Independence were "a self-evident lie." He is a Democrat;—his speech is now in my hand. The Richmond Enquirer, of 23d of January, 1856, says, "liberty is a failure;" says it ought to be prohibited—ought not to be extended to new people, and coming generations. That is a Democratic sheet; it, too, is now before me. Mr. George Fitzhugh, in a work of his, published at Richmond, Va., in 1854, at page 283, says, (his own words are used), "the common notion that liberty is good for man, is one of the most false and foolish that ever entered the human mind." He says he is a Democrat; this I do not doubt. His precious book is now on my table; a good Democratic book, this.

These are the fixed ideas that the Southern despots—oligarchs—have of the rights of man. This must be so, for there is no escaping a principle. Slavery is right, or it is wrong. If it is justice and right towards one race, so it is to another, and so it must be to all; but if it is wrong to one race, so it is to another, and so it must be to all. The South enslaves one race; so she must necessarily, if adopted as a principle, contend for the enslavement of some of the white race. This they do; and here on this free soil, this land of Jefferson, Franklin and Washington, we have Northern men and editors fusing, acting with and aiding these despots in their silently creeping, their insidious tyranny to man.

There are about three hundred and fifty thousand slaveholders in this Union, (I have no ill will towards them as individuals, personally,) and these govern the Republic, of many millions. Like all banded wrongs, they are one, firm, compact, closely jointed, defying the wordy logic of the North to find a joint. The North may sometime find the joint. Liberty is dispersive—it divides; every man is commander, and bows to nothing but to truth and to God. The South come at the North in election contests in a chained, glued body, compact, firm; and by this means, with the political legerdemain, they always are victorious over the North. Some of the tricks are now being understood. The institution of slavery in the Southern States is, as it were, a huge, gigantic corporation, with three hundred and fifty thousand stockholders, having a capital of thirteen hundred million dollars, with its peculiar and special representatives in Congress, ever with a lynx eye, legislating for their masters, all backed and supported by the Southern press unitedly. This is one of the most fearful institutions in this world. If it is not discomfited, whipped, by us now, it will prey upon our posterity—our children and our children's children, down, despotically, through all coming ages.

Here are the long developing, but now fixed, ideas of the South: Firstly, that the Declaration of Independence is a self-evident lie; in the second place that Freedom is a failure, ought to be prohibited to coming generations; and lastly, that it is justice, because right, to enslave all men, black and white. These are the ideas of the South and are dangerous to you and to me—to the whole race of man. You may now in your ease and comfort and fancied security say there is no danger that these infamous opinions will ever be popular; that there is no danger they will ever be enforced, and to which, in all candor, I reply—there is danger. There is danger, because these are truly the ideas of the South, and because there are men, instruments, tools, here in the North who will aid the South to enact and to enforce them through selfish ambition as motive. If Kansas is made a slave State; if the South triumph now; if the North now cringe and falter; if we now bend and succumb to that deadly power; if we are now driven from sacred duty by these terms of supposed [illegible] tell the future? The South can well say, and plausibly too, that their ideas dominate in the national heart, and call, demand, the enactment of the supposed public will into a law. When the South are victorious, as it is quite probable they will be, unless we all join and unite here in the North, then they will call for the enactment of their ideas of despotism into an organic law; and that section or that man—mark the prediction—who now yields, falters at the word [illegible] of abolitionism, and by the charge [illegible] driven from duty—an imperious and an unpalatable one, to our country—will when it is sought to run despotism over the whole land, flinch and falter at the more [illegible] be avowed, tyranny, the opening up of the slave trade and the nationalization of slavery, are to be placed on the limits of the nation. The man may not think so, yet he knows not himself. The future can only tell how this is to end. Now is the time to stand firm. Fear not to stand where our fathers stood.

Messrs. Editors, I now have led the initiative in the acceptance of this honorable post of duty. I accept it. I thank the Convention for it, and promise to do my duty, my whole duty and nothing but my duty, in this matter. Illinois must wipe out this national disgrace, so far as she is concerned.

Yours truly,

WM. H. HERNDON.

March 1[illegible], 1856.

Air and Exercise.

Spring time of year is coming, though it may advance slowly and haltingly, and we shall all before a great while, be emancipated from the atmosphere of artificially heated apartments and enabled to go out of doors and enjoy the genial sunshine and the healthy breath of nature. Before they bid adieu to overcoats and India rubbers, to shawls, muffs, tippets and boas, it behooves the thoughtful of either sex to make up their minds what they will do in the matter of exercise when the lingering prohibitory laws of winter are repealed.

That we Americans do not take air enough is a miserable fact. It stares us in the face in the shape of pale, debilitated men of forty, and sallow, hollow-cheeked, passée women of thirty. There is a lack of muscle in the men and of bloom in the women. The climate is a trying one, to be sure, but that very fact should only stimulate us to fight with and overcome, not to fly from it, and seek refuge against it in interior atmospheres, fifty times more fatal. Have we reason to fear consumption—that insidious foe of New England—straightway we house ourselves, heat ourselves, and deny the balmiest breath of air access to our lungs. We drug our bodies with costly artificial tonics, but we neglect those tonics which nature has provided so bountifully and without cost. One-half of us are faded hothouse flowers, the other a race of unfortunate over-worked bipeds. We perform such herculean tasks that we do not give ourselves time for exercise without work, and particularly out of door exercise.

The falsity of our mode of life is particularly perceptible in the condition of our women. With few exceptions, their mode of life and dress is unnatural, and the early fading of their peerless beauty is the legitimate penalty of their practical neglect of hygienic philosophy. There is no reason, even with the antagonism of climate as a drawback, why the bloom and health of our ladies should not last as long as those of the vaunted belles of England. "Fair, fat and forty," describes a large class of English women, whose charms in the meridian of life eclipse the incipient beauties of its maiden dawn. How few American women at forty retain their good looks and elasticity of health and spirit.

If our fair countrywomen would preserve to the latest hour possible, the charm of beauty and the blessing of health, instead of sinking into early valetudinarianism, they must do as the English women do—accustom themselves to take long walks in stout shoes, ride on horseback, busy themselves, when their situation allows it, in the garden and the dairy, in the practical study of botany, and in sketching out of doors. We have no objections to boating, even—and we have seen belles who could angle for trout as skillfully as they could angle for beaux.

Republican Simplicity.

We were much amused the other day by reading in an English journal some extracts from a work on this country recently published in London, and entitled, "The Englishwoman in America," wherein the fair writer expresses her astonishment at some of the up-town splendors of New York. Associating the idea of a republic with a Spartan, or at least Batavian plainness in the mode of living, the magnificence of the dwellings of some of our American millionaires took her completely by surprise. And this surprise may perhaps be echoed by many on this side of the Atlantic, when they hear this English lady aver that two or three interiors in the upper part of New York surpass in magnificence the ducal and even royal residences of Great Britain. Entering halls paved with costly marbles and mosaics, lined with statues, and adorned with orange trees and fountains, our Englishwoman could hardly believe herself in America—and when she passed from room to room, furnished in different styles, such as the Mediæval, the Elizabethan, the Turkish, and the French, where she saw tables inlaid with gems that cost $10,000 apiece, and articles of virtu obtained at fabulous prices, her astonishment reached [illegible] such a period of luxury as that which formed an era in the history of the Venetian republic. Some of our merchant princes rival those of the Adriatic in the princely magnificence of our expenditure. And if a reform is not worked in the American mode of living, the fate of the Venetian republic awaits our country. The follies and fashions of New York are infecting the people of every city and town in the land.

A California Widow.

[From the Louisville Courier.]

We heard of an affair that happened in the lower part of the city yesterday, which has put the gossips in quite a fever of excitement. It appears that a gentleman who had been residing at the South, recently returned home after a few years' absence in California. His wife, however, could not be found; but pursuing some traces of her, he came to this city and succeeded in discovering her whereabouts yesterday. The meeting between the parties must have been very cordial and pleasant—of course it could not have been otherwise.

The long-absent husband, in his joy at again seeing his wife and four children, seemed willing to excuse any little indiscretions on the part of his better half, no doubt thinking she was lonesome, and consequently not to be too severely censured for seeking some one to supply his place for the time being. At any rate, he took possession of the domicil, and when the gentleman who has been playing husband to the lady for a year past came to his dinner, the rightful claimant to that title made such a demonstration that the free lover took to his heels and made tracks up Main street at a 2:40 pace. Then ensued an exciting and desperately contested race—but fear of the infuriated husband lent wings to the pursued, and he succeeded in effecting his escape.

Speaking One's Mind.

We have often thought that the man who renders truth repulsive, is very nearly of a moral offender, as he who deals in falsehood. There are persons—hypocrites of the worst kind—who use the cloak of truth to gratify the bitterest malice. With them, insolence is frankness; and outraging the decencies of Society, merely speaking their minds. Such a one is our friend Strychnine Wormwood, Esq. No one ever breathed a word against his moral character; nobody ever caught him tripping—yet he is the pest of the circle he infects. He is really a misanthrope, but he cloaks his hatred of his fellows under the flimsy garb of frankness. For instance, he sees a lady of his acquaintance enter a drawing-room at an evening party, all smiles and happiness, and looking charmingly, save perhaps, that just coming out of the cold, the color may not be equally distributed over her face. She sits down near by and is complimented by a friend, who tells her she looks charmingly. This is the cue for Wormwood to strike in. "How can you violate the truth so my dear fellow? Don't you see the lady's nose is terribly red?—or do you really think a red nose is a 'feature?' If it were my case, I should be afraid of erysipelas." The poor girl glances in the mirror, sees a temporary tinge in the most prominent feature in her face, confirmatory of Wormwood's assertion, and is perfectly wretched for the rest of the evening. When others seek to console a sea captain's wife, whose ship has not been heard of for a long while, by suggesting various ways to account at once for his safety and delay, Wormwood assures her that such speculations are not worth listening to—the vessel is undoubtedly lost; and he repeats a dozen different modes of wreck and destruction, in one of which she must infallibly have perished, winding up with, "I'm sorry, ma'am, that I haven't the gift of invention, like my friends here. I could glide through life much more agreeably, if I didn't deal in facts; but I have a weakness ma'am, for the truth, and I must speak my mind, if it kills me." The hypocritical knave, it never hurts him; it is the happiness of others he destroys by his rudeness and bluntness. We need hardly add that Strychnine Wormwood's a bachelor.

No Acting.—The tragedy of Othello was lately performed to the life, or rather to the death, in a small town of Italy. On the Italian stage, Desdemona is not smothered, but poignarded. In the last scene the actor approached the heroine, made the fatal stab, which was followed by a thrilling shriek, and the curtain descended amidst the applause of the audience at the naturalness of the performance. But a real tragedy, not a mimic one, had been enacted.—The actor was in fact a jealous lover, who had taken this opportunity to satisfy the violence of his evil passion. He escaped before the authorities could seize him, and is now a brigand of the Abruzzi.

Important to Tailors.—When garments that have proved too tight are returned to you with directions to let them out, it is not intended that you should let them out to fast young men, charging a dollar an evening.

The Burned Mails.

The Buffalo Express, speaking of the mails that were burned on the Lake Shore road between this city and Buffalo, says:

In regard to the burning of the mails on Wednesday evening, we learn from Mr. [illegible], Deputy Postmaster, that a majority of the smaller packages entirely destroyed, and all of the newspapers [illegible] for nothing. The through canvas [illegible] Boston to Cleveland were saved, as were the letter packages from this city to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Cleveland, though some other packages were burned. The mail from Buffalo to Dubuque injured; [illegible] Buffalo to Chicago, safe; ditto to ditto, distributing office, safe; Buffalo to Sandusky, mostly safe; Buffalo to Indianapolis, safe; Buffalo to Toledo, badly burned and many packages missing; ditto ditto, badly burned, many packages entirely lost; Albany to Toledo, distributing office, safe; ditto to Louisville, partly burned, [illegible] ditto to Cleveland, slightly injured; ditto to Columbus, badly burned, most of the addresses legible, however; ditto to Independence, slightly injured; Boston to Toledo badly injured; ditto to Indianapolis, safe; ditto to Columbus, [illegible] badly injured [illegible] Providence to Cincinnati, badly burned; ditto to Cleveland and Columbus, safe; Troy to Independence, safe.

Pointed.—When the editor of a Mississippi paper threatened, in print, to put a full stop over each of the eyes of the editor of the Louisville Journal, Prentice replied: "While he is putting a full stop over our eyes, we will put his nose in a parenthesis."

Effects of Know-Nothingism.

The Louisville Democrat says that city is in a happy condition—that "she is out of funds, has no fire department, no work to do, property ready for sale but no bidders, plenty of room in vacant houses with but few to occupy them.—Multitudes of the foreign born are gone, and Know-Nothings gone after them, finding no work to do here." The Democrat also remarks that there is no occasion to build any of the houses burned on "Bloody Monday," for "there are left rather more than there are tenants for just now." The Journal very bitterly denies that Louisville is in such a dilapidated condition, threatens the Democrat with dire punishment for its plain talk, and dares the editor thereof, or any other [illegible], to prove before a jury that any Know-Nothings ("American citizens") either burnt any houses, shot any body or stole anything during the riots. It is, however, evident that the Louisville riots were a blow to the prosperity of that town from which it will never recover, and that it is now languishing in a deplorable condition.

St. Louis Politics.

Politics are waxing hotter in St. Louis. The Know-Nothings charge the other ticket with being "Black Republicans." In proof of this, it is adduced that while the balloting for candidates was going on in the Benton Convention, that "Dr. A. T. Crow introduced a resolution pledging 'the Convention not to support any man for office who would not avow his uncompromising opposition to Republicanism.' The resolution was tabled with only two dissenting votes."

From this it would seem that the Democracy of St. Louis do not believe in Frank Pierce, Stephen A. Douglas, or Davy Atchison. Unlike the Black Democracy of Chicago, they oppose the Border Ruffians, as well as the Fillmore Know-Nothings. Should the Benton Democrats carry St. Louis, the Republican (border ruffian) and Intelligencer (pro-slavery K. N.) concede that it will be an Anti-Slavery Extension triumph. From present appearances, it looks very much as if the followers of Atchison would be routed.

Western River Navigation.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce in petitioning Congress to remove the obstructions to the navigation of the Mississippi, between New Orleans and the mouth of the Missouri, appends a statement of the river losses to hulls and cargoes for the year ending Sept. 30th, 1855, from which we learn that property to the amount of two millions, twenty-eight thousand nine hundred dollars has been sunk in the time stated above—lost by the neglect of our Western interests by this wretched Pierce Administration.

The Chamber proposes that the removal of the snags, sunken hulls and rocks, by which navigation is made so dangerous, be effected by contract with parties who shall be compelled by sufficient penalties to execute faithfully all they undertake. But as long as the Sham Democracy is in power, all pleas are vain, and all efforts hopeless. To improve our rivers and harbors, an election is the first step to be taken.

Postal Reform Meeting.

A large meeting of the leading business men of New York, was held on Monday evening, for the purpose of "taking into consideration certain reforms in the postal system of the United States, and to take such other measures as they shall consider necessary to accomplish the desired result."

The subject was fully discussed, and an able report was read. The following resolutions were adopted unanimously by the meeting:

Resolved, That the address of the Postal Reform Committee which has just been read be adopted, and substantially presented to Congress in a suitable memorial.

Resolved, That the reforms in the postal system which this meeting earnestly urges upon the attention of Congress are as follows:

1. A uniform rate of postage throughout the United States—California and Oregon included—which shall not exceed two cents a half ounce.
2. The delivery of letters in cities and principal towns, by carriers, without extra charge.
3. A uniform, simple and equitable system of postage on printed matter, with a marked discrimination in favor of pre-payment.
4. The abolition of franking, or the payment of all government postages out of the treasury.
5. A uniform and low rate of ocean postage between the United States and foreign countries.
6. A comprehensive system for the transmission of moneys, in sums not exceeding $25, by orders, from one Post-office upon another.
7. The abolition of the law of compulsory pre-payment, and a double charge on all mail matter not pre-paid.
8. The return of all dead letters to the writers.

Resolved, That the officers of this meeting be a committee to prepare, sign and transmit to Congress a memorial in the name and behalf of this meeting, in favor of the reforms specified in the preceding resolutions.

Resolved, That, with a grateful sense of our obligations to the press for their zealous support of the cause of postal reform, and a just appreciation of their power in every good work, we earnestly solicit their further cooperation in our efforts.

Mail Robberies.

A regular system of mail robberies seems to have been planned and put into successful execution, between this city and those of the Atlantic. We learn from Col. Armstrong, Postmaster at St. Louis, that the mail made up for Boston on the 26th of January; the mail of the 27th for Washington, and the mail of the 7th of March for Philadelphia, are all missing, and have fallen into the hands of robbers. The matter is one requiring instant investigation by the Post Office Department. These mails contained money and large amounts of drafts, and it seems strange that they should have been stolen without discovery by those having them in charge. From the moment that they leave the St. Louis Post Office they are in the charge of a mail agent. The agent, from this city goes to Vincennes, where the mails are entrusted to another messenger, and so on until they reach their ultimate destination.

These agents are employed for the special purpose of guarding and safely delivering the mails, and if the brass-lock bag, always containing the valuables and money, is missing, they ought to know what becomes of it. If they do not, the special agents appointed to watch over this department ought to set themselves to work to detect the depredators. These mails, all lost within the space of six weeks, shows a degree of negligence equally inexcusable. If the Department cannot rely upon either of these agents, we suggest the employment of some men who will find out the depredators. Our mails ordinarily pass from this city to Philadelphia and New York in three days, and the robbers, wherever they may be, must be pretty well posted up in order to accomplish their object so successfully.

The attention of the Postmaster-General is again solicited to these depredations, in the hope that some plan may be devised to put a stop to them.—St. Louis Republican, 26th.

Removal of an Office.—The people of St. Paul are making an effort to effect the removal of the Surveyor General's Office from Dubuque to Minnesota. They urge with much reason, that, as nearly all the land in Iowa is surveyed, the Surveyor's office should be removed to the point near which the most work is to be done. It is probable that they will succeed.

"Cairo, Illinois, 1856."—We have received a pamphlet bearing the above title, and setting forth the claims of this growing city to its share of eastern capital seeking investment in the West. Cairo is progressing rapidly, and we are glad to notice any well directed effort on the part of its citizens and others interested in property there, in bringing forward its merits as a commercial emporium.

Another Bolter.—Silas Seymour, Esq., Know-Nothing State Engineer, of N. Y., has written a pungent letter in reply to a communication from delegates to the Philadelphia Convention, in which he utterly repudiates the nomination of Fillmore and Donelson. He regards the nomination as a sectional movement with a view to the political supremacy of the South.

The Next Elections.—New Hampshire having led off the pre-presidential election, will be followed by Connecticut, on the first Monday of April, and Rhode Island the Wednesday following. There are no other elections earlier than August.

Mr. Cass and the Old Newspapers.—It is a common practice for Mr. Cass to make the Senate of the United States a place in which to discuss personal affairs. He labors under the singular hallucination that his opinions are of vast importance to the world. [illegible] "to make a personal explanation," or to read [illegible] from the London [illegible] Mr. Cass [illegible] a want of dignity and nerve, [illegible] object of commiseration.

Mr. Cass does not always confine himself to foreign newspapers; but, by way of variety, the public are now and then favored with a "personal explanation" about some article in American newspapers, referring in severe terms to the ex-Presidential candidate.—Boston Atlas.

Overthrow of a Corrupt Cabal.

Recent events in Wisconsin give every friend of good government in that State, and in all other States of the Union, cause for rejoicing. It is demonstrated there, at least, that our political system has enough of vitality and purity, to rid itself, by its own workings and without the presence of external force, of whatever incubus may be placed upon it, or to shake off and annihilate any corrupt cabal that may temporarily bend it to their own uses and purposes. The reign of Barstowism is over. The decision of the Supreme Court, made after an investigation that has tired all parties concerned, has annihilated the hopes of the Usurper and his friends, and the elected of the people and the representatives of their will, fill the places and discharge the trusts that they have so long claimed. When it is remembered how gross the mal-administration of Barstow has been, and when the frauds by which his friends attempted to perpetuate that administration, are open upon the records of the Court, the triumph which law and order have achieved in his dismissal, is so great and so full of promise for the future, that we of Illinois are justified in pointing to it as an earnest of a purer and better era in the political history of the country. But the victory in the Supreme Court has been gained under such circumstances and in spite of such opposition that we are warned to beware that the old game is not again attempted by the actors who have just suffered so signal a defeat. Those who pocketed the gains by the disposition of the School lands of that State under circumstances little short of criminal; who are partners in the contracts and jobs by which they hope to be enriched; who have assisted in plundering the treasury of an amount that the State can poorly spare; who have manufactured election returns to order, and as they were needed—sticking at neither forgery or perjury in the accomplishment of their purposes; who have threatened the existence of the highest judicial authority in the State; who filled the Executive Chamber with arms, and ignorant, misguided men to wield them; who boasted that the government was theirs and that they would administer it by force of arms, if necessary—these men, now routed, will not suffer an occasion to pass that they may hope to improve. The animus that impelled them to the acts that we have enumerated is still alive, and only seeks opportunity to become offensively and criminally manifest. Supported by "the party," they would even now be troublesome; but "the party" refuses its endorsement of their acts; the leading journals of the organization—journals like the Wisconsin at Milwaukee, and the Patriot at Madison—repudiate them and heartily approve the decision of the Court. The rank and file cannot be induced to back them. Hence, until the memory of present dangers fades out, we may hope that Wisconsin will have no cause to fear a repetition of the Barstowisms that have left her where she is. But that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," is as true now as when the reign of Barstow was at its height.

Unequal Taxation.

A correspondent of the Missouri Republican has been making an examination in the Auditor's office of Illinois, to ascertain the amount of the School Tax collected under the law of 1855, which, for educational purposes, levies annually two mills on each dollar's valuation of taxable property in this State. He brings to light, by his published statement in the columns of our St. Louis cotemporary, a glaring inequality in that taxation, and shows that the burden falls with greatest weight upon Chicago and Cook county. The total amount of the tax levied is $603,109.15, of which Cook county pays $62,901.85—a sum that she can cheerfully spare and would willingly contribute, if her citizens could be insured justice in its expenditure. But by an absurd and unjust provision of the law, two-thirds of the sum collected is distributed to the counties in proportion to the number of white children under the age of twenty-one they contain, and the remaining one-third in proportion to the number of townships in each county. By which absurdity, only $29,185 are expended here, leaving a balance of $33,716 to be divided elsewhere. And so of many other counties: Adams, Cass, Clinton, Coles, Madison, Winnebago, St. Clair and others pay into the general fund a much larger sum than is expended for educational purposes within their borders; while the smaller counties, where children and townships are plentiful and where real estate is valued at half its true worth, receive an aggregate of [illegible] more than they pay.

The law passed by our Legislature, and which works such results is, we believe, the coinage of the present State Superintendent. He compared carefully the laws of different States and from each culled what was applicable to the condition and ability of the people of Illinois. In the clause of which we more particularly speak, he must have followed the example of Ohio, where the same objectionable method of distribution prevails, and where, as here, the burden falls upon localities in which great values are gathered in limited areas. Cincinnati, Cleveland, [illegible], Galena, Alton, and Quincy, pay for the teaching of half the surrounding country. Of course the opposition to what is so manifestly unjust, extends, by a very natural consequence, to the whole system; and hence in Ohio, every year the friends of education, by exacting what is wrong, have rigorously to maintain what an overwhelming majority, would under other circumstances willingly support as right. A lesson might have been learned from Ohio; but Mr. Edwards has consistently copied errors and all. We hope to see a portion of his work undone.

Chicago Tract and Missionary Society.—At the last monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Chicago Tract and city Missionary Society, the Superintendent of Tract Distribution was requested to publish the following:

The society has now one hundred and eighty-three tract distributors—mostly ladies—from all the Evangelical churches in the city. This is an increase of thirty-one above the number engaged last month; but is at least one hundred less than the work requires.

The results of the present month are reported as follows:

Number of families visited	[illegible]

Copies of the American Messenger [illegible]	[illegible]
Children gathered into Sabbath Schools	[illegible]
" " " Public Schools	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Bibles supplied to the destitute	[illegible]
Hopeful conversions	[illegible]

The distributors have long felt the need of access to a Religious Library, from which they might draw volumes to loan to families destitute of such reading, and yet deserving it; hence, it was

Resolved, To commence immediately the formation of such a library, and to invite christian families and all interested, to contribute books (not Sectarian) from their own libraries, or money to be invested in books.

Mr. G. A. Spring, at 147, Lake street, was appointed to receive contributions both of books and money.

Before 9 o'clock the next morning one lady had purchased five dollars worth of good books for the object, and thus formed the nucleus of what ought to and we trust will, become a large and valuable public circulating library. Nearly one hundred volumes were deposited before 9 o'clock the same morning. Will not many others in this way give wings to some of their long unused yet valuable books?

Young Men's Association.—Some of the friends of N. F. Iglehart, in order to make capital, are stating, and he allows it to be done in his presence without contradicting it, "that he was formerly President of the Cincinnati Young Men's Mercantile Library Association; that he was a most popular officer, and in that capacity did more than any other man to place that flourishing institution on its present basis." Whereas, it appears by the published history of that Association that he never was President, nor ever held any other office in that Association, excepting, in the year 1838, he was for a short time one of the Managers—the whole Board resigning before their year was out. The names of the original founders were all printed; also the names of those who have been most active in promoting its interests since; but in no place is the name of N. F. Iglehart mentioned, excepting simply as one of the Managers in 1838.

The history containing these facts was printed in 1855, and is in the library of the Young Men's Association of this city. [illegible]

Young Men's Association.—Interested parties are circulating the report, that Thomas B. Bryan, if elected President of this Association, would be opposed to the erection of a new building, on the ground that he would not wish them to leave their present quarters in his building, as he was receiving a handsome rent. This is untrue. In the first place, Mr. Bryan does not now own the building, having exchanged it sometime since for Mr. Parker's Real Estate Books. Moreover, when the lease was concluded with Mr. Bryan, he remarked that the Association should consider these as only temporary accommodations, and these views were expressed after in the presence of many persons, and we have no doubt more would be done by him toward the erection of new buildings, than by those who can only boastfully proclaim their intentions. The lease with him is very reasonable, being much better terms than could be made with any other person. For equal accommodations in another building, double the rent was asked. ONE WHO KNOWS.

The Detroit Remittance to Kansas.—The first contribution of $1,000 by the citizens of Detroit to relieve the wants of the Kansas settlers, owing to the poverty of this vanguard of Freedom, had to be distributed through a Lawrence merchant. No one in the town had [illegible] enough to remit for the money. The settlers were permitted to buy goods at a particular store to the amount of $25 each, and pay in the Scrip at par. In this way the relief was partially distributed, and [illegible] Detroit was [illegible].

Lawrence was nearly impoverished by the expenses of its defence. The loss of horses, cattle, and corn, killed and stolen by the Ruffians, the feeding of her soldiers, and the consumption of the fall stock of provisions, and the seed wheat, corn and potatoes for the spring crops, have reduced her citizens to great straits.

N. Y. & E. Canal.—The N. Y. & Erie Canal will be opened on the 1st of May, according to an Albany correspondent of the N. Y. Com. & Eng., on the strength of a statement made by one of the Canal Commissioners.

COLLISION WITH AN ICEBERG.

The Catastrophe to the Ship JOHN RUTLEDGE.

STATEMENT OF THE SURVIVOR.

Thirteen Persons Living in an Open Boat Five Days on Ten Pounds of Crackers and One Gallon of Water.

Death of Twelve by Starvation and Exposure Before the Ninth Day.

[From the N. Y. Tribune, 26th inst.]

On the 20th of February, the packet-ship John Rutledge, Capt. Kelly, of New York, while on her voyage from Liverpool to this port, struck upon an iceberg and sank, with the mate, carpenter, and 30 to 35 passengers on board. Our information in regard to this disaster is derived from the only known survivor, Thomas W. Nye of New-Bedford. So far as we have been able to learn, the subjoined narrative contains all the facts in the case:

The packet-ship John Rutledge, left Liverpool on the 16th of January, with 120 passengers, and a crew of officers and men, numbering, all told, 16 persons. During the passage she encountered severe weather. One of her crew was washed off the bowsprit, and a male passenger was carried through the bulwarks by a heavy sea and drowned. On the 20th of Feb. the John Rutledge was struck by an iceberg, and went down. From the log-book of the mate, which was saved in the boat by the boy Nye, we extract the following entries:

"Monday, 18th February—8 A. M., thick, foggy, with drizzly rain. Middle and latter part strong breezes and rainy. Passed several icebergs on both sides. Passed one within ten feet of the weather side. Lat. dead reckoning, 45 deg. 34 min. N.; lon. D. R., 46 deg. 56. min. W."

"Tuesday, 19th, P. M.—Follows with light winds and hazy. The vessel was surrounded with icebergs; it being very difficult to steer clear of them. At 8 saw a large field of ice ahead; tried to steer clear of it, but there being little wind it got down to the ship before we could get past it, and the wind dying away, we could not steer clear. At 11 the ship was completely wedged in with drift-ice and very large ice-bergs in all directions, and the breeze springing right aft, there was no alternative but to proceed through it. The further we got in the thicker the ice got, and the greater the number of icebergs. Midnight, light winds and the ship making very little headway through the ice. 4, morning, the same. 8, steady breeze, and the ship making more headway. Passed some very large ice-bergs. At 9 the I—"

Here the log abruptly terminates. From this we infer that the collision with the ice-berg took place between 9 and 10 o'clock on the morning of the 20th of February. And it would seem that the mate was writing up his log when the fatal shock occurred. The ship was abandoned about six o'clock the same evening. Before leaving his vessel, Capt. Kelly, finding that she leaked badly, manned the pumps with passengers and seamen; and as the leak continued to gain upon her, had about 100 bags of salt and a number of crates of crockery broken out of the fore hold and thrown overboard. Getting clear of the ice soon after, it was discovered that a plank was started from the forefoot, and an attempt was made to stuff the leak with blankets and rags.

It appears that this was not very successful as the captain subsequently decided to abandon the vessel. There were five large boats on board, in which 134 persons were to be saved. Now the captain bore himself at this time we could not learn, as the survivor lies in a very critical situation; and it was as much as his life was worth to question him closely. We only know that four boats put off before that in which Nye was. The captain's boat was the only one of the four which had a compass. How Capt. Kelly distributed the provisions and seamen we could not learn. The last boat which left the ship contained only thirteen persons. It appears that Atchison, the mate, put his wife into this boat, and, with the carpenter, went to sound the pumps. While they were gone the boat was struck by a heavy sea which broke her from her fastenings, and she rapidly drifted from the ship, leaving the mate and carpenter, with from thirty to forty-five of the passengers on board. When last seen the ship was down to her mizzen chains in the water; and from the character of her cargo—salt, iron and crockery—she probably went down in a short time afterwards. Of the thirteen persons in the last boat, there were four women, one little girl, five male passengers, Mr. Nye, a Scotch sailor, and the boatswain, an Irishman, whose wife resides in New York. For the subsistence of these people there was only one gallon of water, and six or eight lbs. of bread. The mate had placed a compass in the boat, but his wife, in leaping from the ship, had broken it. Cast thus helplessly upon the open sea, among the fogs and mists of the Banks of Newfoundland, and surrounded by drift and berg ice, their prospects could hardly have been more gloomy.

Soon after the boat broke adrift, night came on—how it passed may be imagined. From what we could learn, but little was said by any one, and probably all of them soon came to a realizing sense of their dreadful situation, for as soon as Mrs. Atkinson entered the boat she seized the vessel containing the water, and being a large, robust woman, fought off all who attempted to obtain a drink from it. Nye got only two or three swallows; the rest was drank by herself and the boatswain. What disposition was made of the bread does not appear. The probability is that there was no organization whatever among the little party, but every one looked out for himself. Having no compass, nor sign by which to steer, they did not exert themselves, other than to keep the boat before the sea. The sailors were [illegible] was also Mrs. Atkinson; but the passengers, for the most part, were scantily attired, and suffered keenly from the cold. Day after day only dawned to raise their spirits anew with hopes of succor, which the long and dreary nights turned to the bitterness of despair. Thus time passed until the third day, when one of the little band, a man whose clothes where quite too thin to shield him from the bleak weather, sank under the combined effects of cold and hunger, and his body was committed to the deep. Then a woman died in the arms of her husband and little daughter, and her corpse was also silently dropped into the sea.

The fourth day came, and with it the same angry sea, the same leaden sky—no ray of hope anywhere visible. The cold was so intense that it almost froze the marrow, and not a drop of water could be obtained, while only a small quantity of food remained. Human nature could not bear up much longer against this exposure and privation, when, just as they were about to give up all hope, the wind lulled, and lo! a brig hove in sight. "She was not very far off," and they pulled for her with might and main. Signals were also made. For some time they seemed to gain upon her, but she did not see them, and the wind freshening, she was soon out of sight. With her went all hope. A burning thirst soon fell upon all of them, and heedless of young Nye's earnest appeals, they fell to drinking salt water. This only increased their thirst, and they drank eagerly and repeatedly of the fatal fluid. What followed is the old story of delirium and death. One by one they grew mad and madder; besought each other to kill them; then they dreamed of sitting at sumptuous feasts, and spoke of the rare dainties which mocked their grasp; of the delicious beverages which they in vain essayed to quaff. At length, worn out with the intensity of their physical and mental sufferings, they grew more subdued, their haggard features became rigid, their wild eyes assumed a glassy look, and their shrunken forms seemed gradually to subside—the next lurch of the boat tumbled them off the seats dead!

Such were the sights which young Nye witnessed daily. As they died, he threw their bodies into the sea, as long as his strength lasted. He says that, although his thirst was of the most agonizing character, he not only warned his fellow sufferers against drinking salt water, but showed them how he obtained relief by simply rinsing his mouth occasionally. They were hopeless and desperate, and would not listen to him. The boatswain grew delirious, and died within twelve hours after drinking it. In his delirium he was most violent. He attempted to throw the oars overboard, and did succeed in throwing over the bucket with which they bailed out the boat. Nye did his best to quiet him and stop him from drinking more sea-water; but he struck him a severe blow upon the chin, inflicting a wound which has not yet healed up. Mrs. Atkinson was also very violent, and being of a very strong constitution, it was a long time before she expired. Our informant's recollection of events which occurred about this time is very indistinct. But, from what we could gather, on the sixth day there were only himself, a small woman wrapped up in two blankets, and the little girl alive in the boat. Before sunset the child died, and on the day following the woman breathed her last. He had strength enough to throw the body of the child overboard; but that of the woman, together with the bodies of three others, were so coiled up under the thwarts that he was unable to extricate them.

Feeling a strong sense of drowsiness creeping over him, he fastened a red shirt and a white shirt to an oar, and hoisting it to attract any passing vessel, he coiled himself up in the stern of the boat and dozed away the hours. Occasionally he would rouse himself, and bale out the boat, and then lay down again. He did not sleep, but the time passed in a kind of waking vision. Occasionally he felt light-headed—and began to dream of being at home in New Bedford with his family. Fearing that he, too might be delirious, he fought against these influences, and kept himself awake by various means. At first the sight of his ghastly companions caused him much distress, and his mind became oppressed with gloomy forebodings. He resolved to shake these feelings off and hope for help even to the last, thinking it better to go to the next world with all his senses about him than to die a raving maniac. Thus resolved, he bore up bravely and to the end.

On the 28th of February a ship hove in sight of the lonely boy. He says that he saw her before those on board discovered him, and he was sure from the first that they would pick him up. That vessel was the packet-ship Germania, Capt. Wood, from Havre, bound to New York. When Capt. Wood descried the solitary boat, he ordered one of his own quarterboats to be lowered and sent an officer to see what it contained. As they approached him poor Nye groaned "For Jesus Christ's sake, take me out of this boat." They did take him out, with womanly tenderness, and with the boat and its fearful load in tow, rowed back to the ship. The young sailor was quickly transferred to the comfortable cabin of the Germania, and his late companions, already far gone in decomposition, were thrown into the sea. The boat was half full of water, and the bodies washing about in it had covered the seats and sides with blood. It is a wooden life-boat, about twenty-five feet long. After [illegible] being thoroughly cleaned, it was hoisted on board and brought into port.

Under any other treatment than that which he received on board the Germania, young Nye would not have lived to see his home again.—But Capt. Wood and his lady took him into the cabin and nursed him with parental tenderness. His feet were soddened with salt water, and so badly frost-bitten up to his knees, that they feared mortification would ensue. Fortunately there were several cows on board, and Mrs. Wood made poultices of bread and milk, and applied them to his legs with such success that all danger of mortification is passed. It was also necessary to administer food and liquids in infinitesimal quantities at first, until his stomach became accustomed to the change; but now he can eat quite heartily. His mind is still somewhat bewildered at times, more especially when the scenes through which he has so recently passed are recalled; he has an almost infantile fondness for those who wait upon him, and can scarcely bear them to be for a moment out of his sight. Yesterday a companion of his childhood, who is clerk in a store in this city, went to him, and will stay with him and accompany him home to New Bedford.

We are informed that Capt. Wood is personally acquainted with the family of his protege. The lad is 19 years, of olive complexion, thin and of wiry make, with black hair and eyes, and rather tall. He had just entered upon the career of a sailor, and has had an experience that will last him through life.

Of the other boats of the John Rutlege no tidings have been received. Nye thinks that those were as badly off as he was, if not worse, and entertains but little hope that any of them would be picked up. As before observed, only the Captain's boat was furnished with a compass, and it is probable that all of them were poorly provided with food and water. The survivor believes that with plenty of these the majority of the people in his boat could have endured the cold until they were picked up.

Later from Kansas.

SEIZURE OF SHARP'S RIFLES.

FULL PARTICULARS.

TOPEKA, K. T., March 15.

Last Sunday, Dr. Cutter, the celebrated physiologist and author, from Warren, Mass., arrived in town. It was soon made known to a select circle that he started with one hundred Sharpe's rifles, and two pieces of cannon, which were on their way up the river in charge of a Mr. Hoyt and three other gentlemen, all from New England. I learn their story as follows:

They arrived at St. Louis without being aware that they were seriously suspected, and went on board the Arabia Tuesday, the 4th inst. Dr. Cutter and one other gentleman of the party concluded to take the land route and meet the others at this place. For fear the rifles might be taken, the Dr. took all the gates or slides from the rifles, also from the cannon, to render them useless to those who might capture them. These slides were packed in their trunks, and are now in safe hands in this town. The rifles can never be used until they are put together, unless the Missourians invent some method by which a smooth barrel can shoot both ways at once. Mr. Hoyt, who was the principal agent in charge of them, says there was nothing occurred for two or three days to lead them to think they were suspected. On Wednesday, I think, a letter was found upon the table in the cabin, which led to bringing out the whole affair; but the character or history of the letter I am not now permitted to give to the public.

The excitement soon grew intense, and a Dr. Porter, of Independence, soon moved to throw the guns overboard, and that all the men implicated—for they soon learned that there were four belonging to the company—should have stones tied around their necks, so they could not get ashore, and be thrown overboard also. It occurred to some one that it would be best to find out, before proceeding further, for a certainty that the guns were on board. Therefore a committee of search were appointed, composed of some of the first men in Western Missouri, in respect to influence and wealth. The Committee was as follows: C. W. Bell, President, of Brunswick; O. A. McFarland, Secretary, of Richfield; Dr. Porter, of Independence; Mr. Emerson; Chas. Kearney, of Westport; Dr. Prewitt, of Parkville.

This Committee soon found them down in the hold, at the bottom of all the freight, and for a time no owner appeared for them. While they were providing some way to get them ashore safely, Mr. Hoyt stepped up and told them he would take charge of them, when they landed. This remark brought down upon him all manner of threats, which he bore with great complacency, and when Dr. Porter threatened to throw him overboard, he replied that he hoped to have the privilege of dining once more with that fat face of his before he was thrown over. Mr. Brady, the Pro-Slavery State Printer was aboard, and being somewhat of a lawyer, he intimated that the Captain of the boat would be liable for damages, if property was destroyed. This opened a new field for debate, which soon waxed hot, and resulted in a bloody fist fight between Brady and Dr. Porter, which ended by the interference of the Captain. At this stage of affairs another Committee was appointed for the depositing, securing and safe-keeping of the guns, consisting of Dr. Porter, of Independence; Dr. Prewitt, of Parkville; Chas. Kearney, of Westport; Col. Hall, of Independence; Mr. Elkins, of Westport.

The Committee showed some unwillingness to assume the responsibility, and when they arrived at Lexington they took Hoyt upon the upper deck and there told him unless he gave up the guns and released the Captain from all liability, that they would not be responsible for the mob that was coming down upon the Levee in great numbers, armed with guns and clubs, and their threats filled the air as they cried out "hang them, hang them! throw the wretches overboard!" &c., &c. Hoyt was finally forced to sign a receipt in full for the articles, and the Committee signed an obligation to Hoyt that the guns should be deliverable to the order of Gov. Shannon or his successor, they also paying the freight. This was a forced affair, [illegible] would have been apparently the alternative. With this evidence, they are legally just as liable for the cost of the guns as though they were robbed upon the highway, without any papers being signed. After this had occurred they put the guns on shore at Lexington, and many wanted to get them out immediately for use. One said he had always wanted a Sharpe's Rifle and would give $30 if they would let him pick out one; another said he tried to get one at Lawrence last fall, and would give them $25 for one, and so on. Probably the bids won't run so high when they discover that the loading apparatus is missing.

After the boat started, one of the company tried to atone to Hoyt for the past, and complimented him very highly, saying they never knew a man to conduct himself so bravely before, in such a peculiar crisis. He landed safely at Kansas, and the whole party came in here to-day. To-morrow morning Mr. Hoyt will go to Lecompton and demand an order from Gov. Shannon for the guns. We expect more music yet from the affair. Dr. Cutter is quiet and composed, and feels that the cause is doing well, whatever may become of the guns. It is now ascertained that a part of the company on the boat who were active in the capture, had been through N. E. and other States, had followed Pomeroy around the country, and listened to all the plans about sending on rifles, &c. They came on in the same train with them, but did not choose to make their business known till they got into Missouri. The Captain told Mr. Hoyt, on the boat, that he knew guns were aboard soon after leaving St. Louis. This proves to our eastern friends that they must be "wise as serpents," if not as harmless as doves.

RANDOLPH.

The Court of Appeals declares the Prohibitory Liquor Law of New York Unconstitutional.

The various questions arising under the Prohibitory Liquor Law, and carried from the Courts below to the Court of Appeals, were decided by that Tribunal this morning. We have been unable to obtain either of the Opinions delivered, but learn that the practical effect of the decisions covers the whole ground, and goes to the extent of declaring the Law Unconstitutional.

The main points decided, arose in the Brooklyn and Buffalo cases. In the Brooklyn case the Supreme Court held that the Search and Seizure clause was UNCONSTITUTIONAL. This Decision is affirmed by the Court of Appeals.

In the Buffalo case the Constitutionality of the Search and Seizure Section was Affirmed by the Supreme Court. That case is Reversed by the Court of Appeals.

The Court decides that any Prohibitory Law which interferes with and affects property already in possession, is unconstitutional and void. That the present law is wholly unconstitutional for the reason that it applies to property now in possession, as well as that to be hereafter acquired.

It is understood, further, that these conclusions are dissented from by three of the eight Judges.

We understand that Opinions were delivered against the Constitutionality of the Law by Justices Denio, A. S. Johnson, Selden, and Comstock; and in favor of its Constitutionality, by Justices T. A. Johnson and Wright.—Albany Evening Journal.

The Nicaragua Transit Company and the Government.

WASHINGTON, March 22.

Messrs. White and Vanderbilt were closeted with Attorney-General Cushing for some time to-day, and were urging our government to aid them in their difficulties with Gen. Walker. Mr. Marcy, on a previous occasion, peremptorily refused to do anything, and Mr. Cushing stated to them in plain terms to-day that they could expect nothing from our government. It appears the subject has been before the Cabinet. The Administration are of opinion that White and Vanderbilt aided and connived at filibustering expeditions to Nicaragua; therefore they have no sympathy with them, and are determined not to interfere.

Scene in the Crimea.

From the Diary of a British Officer.

February 23.—A gray and gusty day, a brown hill, a black gallows with a grave dug beneath it, and a criminal led up, with pinioned arms, to the dismal music of the "dead march" in Saul, compose the not very cheerful combination of circumstances and objects witnessed this morning in front of the Light Division camp. Before 7 o'clock 100 men from each infantry regiment, 30 from each battery of artillery, and 20 from each division of Land Transport Corps, were formed up in a vast hollow square on Picket House hill. There had been a driving shower half an hour before, and the troops were in their black water-proofs, which added to the lugubrious aspect of the whole scene. The wretched criminal walked steadily up to his punishment, ascended the steps without assistance, and stood firm and upright while the executioner adjusted the rope round his neck and pulled the white cap over his face. The wind was so high as to impede the latter operation and occasion a little delay. At last all the preliminaries were arranged; the executioner descended and drew away the plank. The drop looked rather short, but nevertheless the man appeared to die quickly, and with scarce a [illegible]

Congressional.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 27.

In the Senate this A. M., the matter connected with the action of the naval board, were made the especial order for Monday.

The invalid pension bill was passed.

Mr. Harlan addressed the Senate on the subject of Kansas, taking grounds strongly against Mr. Douglas' report.

Adjourned until Monday.

Collamer, Gier and Seward will speak in succession on the Kansas question.

Mr. Harlan said he never hitherto desired to discuss the question of slavery, believing such agitation mischievous and fraught with danger to the perpetuity of the institutions of the country. Others differed with him in this opinion, and among them the President, who, without waiting for the organization of the House sent Congress two voluminous messages reversing the whole subject judicially, historically and politically. It would therefore be disgraceful to the President and those representing his principles in the Senate, to ignore his favorite theme. Mr. H. then entered into an examination of Mr. Douglas' Kansas report, concluding by declaring its representation of historical facts as perverted and highly colored. He had no doubt that armed men entered Kansas for the purpose of contesting elections, some by false swearing and some by the use of arms, no amount of talent intrigue of force of eloquence could obliterate these historical truths, it was remarkable that although the statement from the London Times and other foreign journals were quoted from by Senators without exciting feelings of scorn, yet when from the newspapers of our own country proofs are shown that gigantic frauds have been committed upon the people of Kansas. The statements are treated with disrespect and unworthy of notice. The Pro-Slavery papers of Kansas and Missouri admit the fact of forcible interference justify it as necessary.

Mr. Harland continued in advocation of the power and duty of Congress to exclude slavery from the territories, he denouncing the idea that slavery from the territories be permitted in a territory, saying that once established, it could not be expelled. In the course of his remarks, he alluded to the injustice of slavery, and agreed that the negro has the same physical, mental and moral nature as the white man, and that his inferiority gave the whites no right to enslave him. Adjourned till Monday.

THE FIRE KINGS! THE FIRE KINGS!!

RACINE, March 15th, 1856.

GENTLEMEN:—The Safe (Fire King No. 2), I bought of you a few months since, has just passed through as severe a test as I have ever heard of any Safe being put to, and has most triumphantly demonstrated itself to be a Fire Proof Safe in every sense of the word. Last Friday night, my Foundry and Machine Shop in this city, was burned to the ground. The Safe was in the second story of a heavy timbered frame building, three stories high. The timbers were full twelve inches square. In the story directly over the Safe was 2000 feet of seasoned pine lumber. The whole fell with the Safe in the moulding room below, upon a pile of Anthracite Coal, which was ignited by the intense heat to a white heat. In this fiery furnace the Safe lay six hours, so that I had no other hope or expectation, than that my books and papers were utterly destroyed, but, on opening it, to my surprise and joy, they were unharmed. Everything is perfectly legible, not even the edges of the leaves were discolored. I shall take great pleasure in recommending the Duryee & Forsyth Manufacturing Co. Safes hereafter; after witnessing such a test nothing would shake my confidence in them. R. SKINNER.

We examined the above mentioned safe after the fire, and found every thing as stated by Mr. Skinner. A. C. SANFORD, Ed. Racine Advocate. MILTON MOORE.

RAYMOND & WARD, 177 South Water street, Chicago, have a large assortment of these valuable Safes, to which they invite the attention of purchasers. mh28-1tdaw-q41

DARING ROBBERY.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY, THAT MY STORE was entered last night by forcing the front door, and the door to my Safe, (a new one lately purchased of Duryee & Forsyth's Agents), torn entirely off by placing an iron bar under it, (the Safe door) near one of the hinges, and between three and four hundred dollars taken by the robbers, in so still a manner that several persons sleeping in the same building were not awakened by the noise. (Signed) G. C. JONES. Dated Detroit, March 8th, 1856.

The above-mentioned Safe is the same size of the one exhibited by Duryee & Forsyth's Agents, (C. & J. Jenks), at the last State Fair, and the same size of the one torn to pieces at the Fair, in the presence of thousands, (to expose their insecurity) by Mr. Lillie, the patentee of Lillie's Wrought and Chilled Iron Burglar and Fire Proof Safes, over 1,000 of which are now in use, and we challenge the sheet iron manufacturers to show that a single dollar was ever lost, by thieves, or fire, though often tested by both. We have room for only one instance:—Mr. Julius D. Morton, agent in this city for N. Y. C. R. R., has one of Lillie's Safes, which was thoroughly tried by some burglars, during the absence of two or three days, until they were satisfied it could not be opened. How eagerly they tried, and how long they worked, may be judged by seeing the battered safe, which is now in use at C. A. Trowbridge's office, without ever having been repaired.

These Safes are a combination of Wrought and Chilled Iron, from one and a half to three inches thick, forming an impervious metal to the chisel, drill, iron bar or sledge-hammer. All Safes sold by ourselves, or our agents, are warranted drill proof, and all purchasers are requested to have them tested thoroughly. WORLD'S SAFE COMPANY, Per E. J. WOOLEY, Agent, At C. & A. Ives' Banking Office.

ANOTHER DARING ROBBERY.

ANOTHER SAFE TORN TO PIECES.

This is to certify that my office was entered last night by burglars, and my Safe (one of Silas C. Herring's manufacture) opened, and about $40 in money taken, and the books spoiled by the robbers, by first breaking off the hinges, then cutting a hole four inches square, entirely through the door, and finally blowing the lock off with powder. (Signed) DAVID FRENCH, Proprietor Detroit Planter Mills. Detroit, March 22, 1856.

The broken hinges, which are small, and made of cast iron, and part of the door of the above-mentioned safe, and may be seen with the subscriber. [illegible] Fire Proof Safes and Powder Proof Locks. Lillie's patent is a later improvement in Safes, being burglar as well as fire proof, of great importance, when we consider that more is lost by burglars than by fire, (as shown by statistics in the Merchant's Magazine) and as in this instance, burglars are so malicious, that finding little or no money, they destroy the books. In future we shall publish all robberies of sheet iron safes, [illegible] WORLD'S SAFE COMPANY, Per E. J. WOOLEY, Agent, At C. & A. Ives' Banking Office. mh28-1t

BEAUTIFY YOUR HOMES.—THE BEST work in the world to aid you is the AMERICAN HORTICULTURIST, a Magazine now considered by even the Horticultural men of Europe as higher authority upon the subjects of which it treats than any other production.

1st. The Description and cultivation of Fruit and Fruit Trees—a subject of vast importance, and in which we are already more interested in than any other people.
2d. The Description and Cultivation of Flowers and Flowering Plants and Shrubs, from the most delicate and tender to the most healthy and robust.
3d. To the Description and Cultivation of all edible plants, which are or should be grown in our gardens.
4th. To gardening as an art of Taste, with designs for Ornamental and Landscape Gardening.
5th. To Rural Architecture.
6th. To Arboriculture—or the Planting and Culture of Ornamental Trees.
7th. To Botany and Entomology.

The extended and valuable correspondence of the Horticulturist presents the experience of the most intelligent cultivators in America. The superior illustrations, and the instructive and agreeable articles from the pens of the editor and contributors, make it equally sought after by even the general reader, interested in country life.

A new volume commences with the January number. Terms: plain edition, $2; edition with colored plates, $5. Specimen copies on hand. S. C. GRIGGS & CO., mh25 111 Lake street, Chicago, are Western publishers.

ASPIRATION,

An Autobiography of Girlhood. By Mrs. Manners. 1 vol. 12mo. Price $1.

"Its graphic delineations of character, its vigorous thought and its religious spirit, will combine to make it a book of rare excellence and attraction to the pure-minded reader. The following are a few of the comments of the critics:

"Nothing more graphic has appeared since 'Jane Eyre.'"—New York Herald.

"The characters are drawn with an uncommon degree of intellectual insight, and are sharply defined."—Hartford Journal.

"It is well written. The narrative is sprightly, and sufficiently varied to keep up an interest in the story."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"No young lady who glances through half a dozen pages of this volume, will throw it aside unread. If a real autobiography, it is also a work of brilliant imagination—more interesting than romance, more exciting than fiction. It is a drama of youthful life, joyous and sad by turns, sprightly, restless, exhibiting the passions of more ardent natures."—Christian Observer.

"In the present work we have an infusion of earnest thought and ennobling sentiments, which parents may put in the hands of their daughters with the confidence that it will produce a good effect."—New York Day Book.

"This is a good story, of good tendency, and very gracefully penned. It has our heartiest approval. Thus the remarks at the close of the volume, we question if there is a finer or more sublime passage in the whole range of English literature."—Boston Traveller.

"The book gives the earnest workings of an ardent mind in early life, presenting many highly-wrought pictures."—Family Intelligencer.

"This charming story is from the pen of Mrs. William C. Richards, of Providence, R. I. The interest awakened by the announcement of its forthcoming, has been more than gratified, as is fully proven by the increasing demand for the book."—Journal.

"In an easy style she has written a book that will please and profit all who read it, and we shall be glad to hear that many thousands have done so."—New York Examiner.

TO THE VOTERS OF SOUTH CHICAGO.

Whereas, Thomas Brock, as candidate for Town Collector, is representing to the voters of South Chicago, that the undersigned is not a resident of Chicago, and consequently is not a resident of Chicago, and consequently is not entitled to hold office or the suffrages of the people. Therefore, in self defence, I take this method to inform the voters of this town that I am a citizen of Chicago, and claim my residence here, and have done so the greater part of the past twenty years. Those who are intimately acquainted with me, very well know Mr. Brock's object in circulating the above report, but I am compelled to make this public statement to remove the false impression which has been made. EDWIN CLARK. mh22-4t*

IF you have suffered enough from the Salt Rheum, Canker, or Erysipelas, and have been humbugged into buying lots of stuff with names which no man can pronounce, and find, like Franklin, that you have paid too dear for your whistle, why, then you are just the man who ought now to take DR. S. A. WEAVER'S CANKER AND SALT RHEUM SYRUP, and Rheum will be himself again. mh28

CAUTION TO WESTERN MERCHANTS.—WOLFE'S SCHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS.—This celebrated medicinal beverage is manufactured at the factory of the undersigned, at Schiedam, Holland. He is the sole importer, as well as the exclusive manufacturer of the article, and no preparation bearing the name of "Schnapps" that is not procured either from his establishment in New York, or from his agents in other cities, is genuine and reliable.

It is made from barley of the finest quality, selected with great care from the products of the most celebrated grain-growing districts, is flavored with the essence of the aromatic Juniper Berry of Italy, and is rectified by a peculiar process, which expels from the spirit every acrid particle.

As a means of preventing and correcting the disagreeable and often dangerous effects produced upon the stomach and bowels by a change of water—a visitation to which travelers, new settlers, and all unacclimated persons in the West, the South, and South-west are peculiarly liable—the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps will be found absolutely infallible, while, in cases of dropsy, gravel, obstruction of the kidneys, diseases of the bladder, dyspepsia, and general debility, it is recommended most emphatically by the most distinguished members of the medical profession.

It is put up in quart and pint bottles, in cases of one dozen, with the name of the undersigned on the bottle and cork, and a fac-simile of his signature on the label.

UDOLPHO WOLFE,
Nos. 18, 20 and 22 Beaver street, New York.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

Since the introduction of my Schiedam Schnapps into the United States, a number of Liquor Mixers in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, have commenced putting up mixed and poison Gin, and calling it Schnapps; the name belongs expressly to my article, all others are counterfeits and impositions on the public.

CAUTION TO PERSONS WHO DRINK AT BARS AND HOTELS.

Numerous complaints are made of persons who keep Bars on Steamboats and in Hotels, who fill up empty bottles with common Gin, and sell it to the unsuspecting for my SCHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS. I would therefore advise all who drink the Schnapps at such places, to mark the appearance of the bottle; and if the outside wrapper or label should be defaced, to refuse to drink, unless a fresh bottle is opened. mh14-3m-d&wtf UDOLPHO WOLFE.

The Break.—The ice is slowly melting and passing out of the river, and it will, we hope, be all gone in a very few days. No danger is now apprehended from the break up.

Presentation.—On last evening a handsome gold headed Cane was presented to Mr. N. P. Iglehart, by his brother Odd Fellows. The cane bears this inscription.—"Presented to N. P. Iglehart by brother Odd Fellows."

Unpaid Letters.—There are letters for the following Chicago citizens remaining in the Cincinnati Post Office for want of pre-payment: Col. R. J. Hamilton, J. A. Herlock, A. C. Lewis.

Fancy Dress Dress.—On next Tuesday evening a grand fancy dress ball is to be given at Metropolitan Hall, and we learn that arrangements are being made for one of the most magnificent parties of this kind, of the season. Those interested will notice advertisement under the head of amusements.

Groceries Coming.—We learn that large quantities of groceries are being received at La Salle from New Orleans for merchants in this city, and that large arrivals by railroad are expected here in a few days. Freight from New Orleans direct to LaSalle by steamer are about 35 cents per 100 pounds.

Evanston Female College.—We learn that the Spring Term of the North-western Female College at Evanston, will commence on the first day of April. The winter term closed with fifty-five pupils, and we are pleased to learn that the Institution is in a most flourishing condition.

Building Association.—At the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the "Garden City Building Association," on the evening of the 26th inst., the following gentlemen were unanimously elected for the ensuing year: President, J. H. Chickering; Vice-President, J. N. Barker; Treasurer, Elijah Smith; Secretary, L. C. Hall; Assistant Secretary, Thomas Buckley.

Trinity Church.—The Parish of this Church has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. S. Reynolds, Senior Warden. L. P. Hilliard, Jr. Warden. W. W. Danenhower, S. Foot, D. J. Ely, J. N. Staples, Thomas B. Bryan, A. Y. Claggett, A. H. Pitkin, Vestrymen. The annual sale of the pews amounted to $2,200, which is an increase of twenty-five per cent. upon last year's income, and is the best evidence of the prosperity of the church. Rev. W. Smallwood, D. D., is rector of the parish.

Benefit of McFarland.—On this evening Prof. McFarland of the Amphitheatre takes a benefit.—About dusk his wife and himself will walk across the street in front of the Amphitheatre upon a wire stretched across from the top of one building to another. This is a great feat, but it has been successfully accomplished by these artistes a number of times. This feat will be well worth seeing, and will doubtless attract a crowd. McFarland is a deserving artiste, and has contributed much towards the entertainment of those who attend the Amphitheatre. We hope he will have a crowded house to-night.

New and Dangerous Counterfeit.—A new and dangerous counterfeit, of twenty dollar bills on the Bank of the State of Missouri has made its appearance in our city. The bogus is a very good imitation of the genuine, and persons should beware of them. The bill we saw was numbered 184, and dated 12th August, 1853. The bill appeared new and finely engraved, though the eagles on each end were somewhat blurred. It has for a vignette, two females, an iron safe, and a steamboat and shipping in the distance. In each corner are portraits, and between them an engraving of an eagle. Several of these bills were passed in the city yesterday, and doubtless others will be offered.

Presence of Mind.—Two boys—perhaps a dozen years of age—got into a muss, in Washington street yesterday, and "went in." After tugging and pulling at each others hair, and "slashing about" in a general way they went down. The one at the bottom getting the worst of it, cried out "Hold on, John, there's a perliceman!" His adversary relaxed his hold, to look over his shoulder for the policeman; but he never made a greater mistake in his life—for quick as a flash the boy beneath him hove him over, and was himself on top, playing away like blazes. "I say, Jim," said the pummeled "that wa'nt fair." "Holler enough, then," said the boy above, "holler enough, and I'll let up." "Enough it is then—but if you hadn't talked about the perlice, I'd a licked you to thunder!" said the satisfied urchin, as he rose to his feet and picked up his hat from the gutter.

Church of Atonement—Rev. Dudley Chase, Rector.—At the annual Parish meeting of this church held on Easter Monday, the following officers were elected: Senior Warden—Reuben Taylor. Junior Warden—L. P. Cheney. Edward Varian, Thos. Pickering, Henry S. Jennings, Henry Keeps, E. M. Armstrong, Isaac Dike, S. A. Ford, Vestrymen.

Delegates to Diocesan Convention, Reuben Taylor, Edward Varian, Henry S. Jennings.

We are informed that the attendance was unusually large, and that the utmost harmony prevailed, and that the Parish never gave greater evidence of increasing prosperity. The utmost cordiality of feeling prevails in the parish and between every member of the same, and the persevering and worthy Rector, which furnishes sufficient proof that this Parish will soon be second to none in the city.

Illinois and Michigan Canal.—It is the opinion of the Superintendent that if there should come sufficient rain to thaw the frost out of the banks, the Illinois and Michigan Canal will be opened about the ensuing 10th of April. The LaSalle Watchman of the 26th inst. says that "the new Aqueduct on the Illinois and Michigan Canal, over the Little Vermillion River, at this place, has been completed, and the whole length of the Canal will be ready for business as soon as freed from ice, which will be in a few days."

Active preparations are making here to get the boats ready for business as soon as the time comes for using them, and an immense amount of freight is awaiting transipment both north and south. As the Illinois river is now open and boats running, shippers are awaiting very impatiently for canal navigation to commence.

Fire Yesterday.—About two o'clock, P. M., the two story wooden building, on the West side of Dearborn street, near the corner of Randolph, caught fire, but was promptly extinguished by the Department. The North apartment of the lower floor was occupied by Mr. Bumgaltner's fish, oyster and vegetable store, and the South apartment for a [illegible] show. The fire caught near a back window in the upper story, and as there had been no fire in the upper story for some time, was probably the work of an incendiary. The loss was about $100.

Yesterday afternoon two small barns in the rear of a house of ill-fame, kept by Mrs. Susan Warren, were burned. The barns were burned at two different times. These fires were no doubt the work of an incendiary, and set on fire with the design of destroying Mrs. Warren's house as a number of persons are known to have made threats against her property. One of the barns was owned by Alex [illegible] and the loss is about $75. The other barn was owned by a Mr. Higgart, and the loss is about $50. A colored man named Robinson, who occupied a house No. 33, Monroe street, was damaged somewhat by a removal of furniture. His loss is probably about $25.

Body Found.—The body of the supposed murdered man McCabe was found yesterday morning in the river in front of Hale's warehouse. The body though much decomposed, was recognized by McCabe's wife from a deformity in one of his feet. McCabe disappeared on the night of the 9th of December last, and nothing has been known as to what became of him until his body was found in the river.

Soon after his disappearance John McKenny, Edward McCall and Barney Mathews in whose company he was last known to be, and who had been with him in a saloon that evening, were arrested on suspicion of having murdered him, but were discharged for want of proof. After the body was found these men were again taken into custody, but there being no evidence to warrant their being held they were discharged. The only mark of violence on the body was a contusion back of the left ear. It is supposed that McCabe, who was intoxicated on that evening accidentally fell into the river and was drowned, as it was proved before the Coroner's Jury by the watchmen in charge of the Grain Elevator, that on that same night an unknown man fell into the river, and before they could render him assistance, he sank. The probabilities are that McCabe was accidentally drowned. The Jury rendered a verdict accordingly.

One of the barns was owned by Alex Haffin, and the loss is about $75. The other barn was owned by a Mr. Hicgart, and the loss is about $60. A colored man named Robinson, who occupied the house No. 69, Monroe street, was damaged somewhat by a removal of furniture. His loss is probably about $25.

BODY FOUND.—The body of the supposed murdered man McCabe was found yesterday morning in the river in front of Hale's warehouse. The body, though much decomposed, was recognized by Mr. McCabe's wife from a deformity in one of his feet. McCabe disappeared on the night of the 9th of December last, and nothing has been known as to what became of him until his body was found in the river.

Soon after his disappearance John McAneny, Edward McCall and Barney Mathews in whose company he was last known to be, and who had been with him to a Brewery that evening, were arrested on suspicion of having murdered him, but were discharged for want of proof. After the body was found these men were again taken into custody, but there being no evidence to warrant their being held, were discharged. The only mark of violence upon the body was a contusion back of the left ear. It is supposed that McCabe, who was intoxicated on that evening, accidentally fell into the river and was drowned, as it was proved before the Coroner's jury, by the watchman in charge of the Grain Elevator, that on that same night an unknown man fell into the river, and before he could render him any assistance, he sunk. The probabilities are that McCabe was accidentally drowned. The jury rendered a verdict accordingly.

RESCUED.—A man named Matthew Cunningham, while laboring under mania a potu, threw himself into the river near the Lake House Ferry, on Thursday night, but was rescued by officers Rascon and Wels, of the 2d district, who conveyed him to the lock. The fellow probably jumped into the river to drown the snakes in his boots. He was something like the Emerald Islander who being troubled with a nuisance in the shape of a cur dog undertook to freeze the brute to death by locking him out of doors one bitter cold December night. The cur, however, did not relish this, and made bold just to jump through the window. Jemmy got out of bed, took the cur by the ears, and carried him out of doors. As Jemmy was gone some half an hour, Bridget got up and went out to see what had become of her old man. She found him standing bolt upright in the keen December blast—his nether garment fluttering in the wind—and on hailing him to know why he was doing thus, Jemmy answered as best he could between his chattering teeth. "Its trying to freeze the brute, I am, sure."

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.—Mrs. Anna Warren was fined $50 by Judge Rucker for renting a house owned by her to be used as a house of ill-fame. On this she took an appeal. A suit has also been commenced against her for selling liquor without a license.

Robert Harmon, the driver of hack No. 61 was fined $5 for overcharging and deceiving a passenger. The hack is owned by Mr. Kelly.

A man named John M. Hedland was fined $5 for assault and battery by Justice D'Wolf. It seems that a Mr. and Mrs. Juneberg came to Hedland's house in the West Division and accused him of cheating and lieing to them, whereupon Hedland put them out doors and afterwards into the mud.

N. W. Marks was committed in default of $100 bail on a charge of stealing some hams.

G. W. Phillips was arrested by constable Bartlett, near Blue Island, and tried before Justice Milliken on a charge of stealing a horse of a Mr. Irish, 12 miles south-west of Chicago. The horse was worth $150, was taken from the New York House stable, in this city, on Tuesday last, and is not yet found. Phillips came in peaceably with the constable, but tried to escape by running, after getting into the city. It was proven that he had bought a new suit of clothes after the horse was taken, and hid his old ones. Other testimony was so strong as to cause the justice to require bail for his appearance (in $1,200) at the Recorder's Court in May next.

Thomas Kirby for being drunk and fighting, was held for further examination in the sum of $25. Francis M. Fleming, fined $3, and John Francis $5 for drunkenness.

THE TIMES DEFENDS THE TREACHERY OF ALDERMAN SEXTON.—The Times of yesterday comes to the defence of the late purchase of the Nebraska Party, Ald. Sexton, in a long article composed of much nonsense and more untruth. In the first place, we are charged by inference with attacking Ald. Sexton because he voted for the Times for city Printer. This is not true. We charged Alderman Sexton with having betrayed his constituency in joining the Nebraskals, and we can find nothing in the Times' article to cause us to qualify that charge in the least, but rather new confirmation of its truth. The Times says that in 1855 it, "Solitary and alone opposed the election of Alderman Sexton," and this is true. The Times now defends and supports Ald. Sexton. In order that this may be, somebody must have changed sides. Is it Ald. Sexton or the Times which deserves to be dubed or changeling. We are of the opinion that Ald. Sexton is the turncoat. Does the Times differ from us in this?

"As we predicted, Know Nothingism having answered its election purpose, soon became odious. Hundreds of its votaries abandoned it, and among those who did so, was Alderman Sexton. Having shaken off that order, he became, as he had been before, a Democrat, and he has acted for months, as he does now act with the Democratic party. He voted for the Times, and for this offence he is berated by these papers. He is accused of political inconsistency."

We do not deny what the Times charges against Know Nothingism. We are neither defenders nor apologists of that order. Hundreds of the votaries of the order have abandoned it beyond question, but Ald. Sexton is not among them, or was not until after last election day or rather until after the result was known, at least we never heard the gentleman or any of his friends say that he had, or even intimate that it was so. There were plenty of K. N.'s in good standing who supported Mr. Dyer, and it seems that Ald. Sexton was one of them. We do know that Ald. Sexton is at this present moment an endorser of a note held against the Know Nothing organ of this city. Ald. Sexton said to the writer of this, a short time previous to the late election, that he had about made up his mind to join the Republican party, but as he joined the other side we suppose he still stuck to his Know Nothingism, and for aught we have ever known still sticks to it.

Ald. Sexton is accused of political inconsistency, and if the Times does not prove the truth of the accusation then words have no meaning. There can be no doubt in the mind of any disinterested person as to the fact that between the months of March, 1855, and March, 1856, Ald. Sexton has deserted the Free Soil party and joined the Pro-Slavery party. Even the Times does not pretend to deny this, indeed it is so plain as to admit of no denial whatever. He who runs may read that. As to Ald. Sexton having been paid for changing sides on the eve of an important election, the Times says:

"With respect to the charges of bribery and corruption which the Tribune suggests are sufficiently made out to convict Alderman Sexton before any petit jury, we are authorized to say, and do so now in the most positive form, that they are false in every particular. Mr. Dyer made no bargain with Alderman Sexton. The appointment of the latter to the Committee on Police was not made in pursuance of any bargain, sale, fraud, bribery, corruption, or any other undue, unfair or improper appliance, argument, persuasion or inducement."

Of course the Times is in duty bound to defend the sudden convert, however distasteful it may be, for those who profit by treachery must nevertheless despise the traitor if themselves be honest. Mr. Dyer may not have bought Ald. Sexton with the promise of placing him at the head of the Committee on Police, and we did not so charge, but we do think that nine men out of ten who know anything of the matter will not believe him guiltless, even among those who support the Times party.

The Times takes occasion to denounce Ald. Long as being a Pro-Slavery Know Nothing. Now if the Times does not know this charge is utterly false it is certainly totally ignorant of political matters in Chicago. Ald. Long is not and never was a member of the Know Nothing order, and is well known to be an opponent of the Slavery Extension policy of the Times. Ald. Long is too well known in this city for any capital to be made by the Times out of such silly and prima facie false charges. That paper will neither add to its credibility among the people nor its character for courtesy by any such futile attempts to blacken the character of a gentleman who is universally recognized as an honest and faithful public servant.

Chicago Wholesaling.

The St. Louis Republican of Wednesday last, in noticing an article from the Chicago Journal on wholesale houses here, makes the following comments:

"What the Journal says about its grocery establishments is really amusing. 'The stocks of raw sugars on hand are large, better than at St. Louis, even.' This will do as a sample of the article; but we venture the assertion that the PROFITS ALONE of one of our houses, on sugar, last season, were greater than the entire sales of any house in Chicago; we put these profits at $130,000. Now this is no solitary case, for other houses made like profits, not so much, perhaps, but in proportion to the investment."

There is no house in Chicago engaged exclusively in the sugar business; but there is a firm which sold over SIX THOUSAND HOGSHEADS of sugar during the past year, which at a general average of $84 per hhd., gives a total of over $500,000 in sales; the profits are a private matter in business, but we can give that if requisite. There are six houses in Chicago doing from $400,000 to $800,000 a year in groceries; a fact worth mentioning. Chicago is a young city, and her influence is only beginning to be felt throughout the West. She is the rival of St. Louis for much of the Mississippi river trade; every year her business connections are extended hundreds of miles into the interior of the west; her railroad facilities and other channels of commerce are becoming unequaled. Any business man of St. Louis knows these statements are true, and several of the St. Louisians are so impressed with them, that they have taken up their habitation with us. We are aware there are several houses in St. Louis doing a million dollars worth of business a year, and we have one or two of the same class here. In Dry Goods and Groceries, St. Louis beats us; but in the great staples of Grain and Lumber, our southern sister bears about the same relation as Calomel.

FRANCE—LAKE SUPERIOR COPPER.—A correspondent of the New York Commercial Advertiser says:

"France uses yearly from fourteen to twenty thousand tons of copper, principally in the manufacture of bronzes, and only produces four thousand tons. Even this is of an inferior quality, being full of pyrites and other foreign substances. Most of the copper used in France comes from England directly, and from Russia indirectly. From this dependence upon England and Russia, Napoleon is anxious to disenthrall himself. Recently, the Baron Rothschild bought a considerable quantity of Minnesota copper, and had it tried at the foundry of Strasbourg, in comparison with the best specimens of Russian copper. The American copper was found far superior, both in tenacity and in delicacy of cast. Encouragement is immediately to be given by the French government for a transfer of this trade from England and Russia to the United States, a speculation in which Rothschild will be largely engaged."

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

☞ Capt. Goodrich, of the Huron, which left here for Two Rivers on Wednesday, reports the Lake free of ice so far as his observation extended. He met a fore-top-sail schooner between Racine and Milwaukee—supposed to be loaded with lumber for Chicago.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY
Of the Age.

MR. KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, HAS discovered, in one of our common pasture weeds, a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOR, from the worst Scrofula to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst cases of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing in the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is now a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no ifs nor ands, hums nor ha's about it suiting some cases and not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know its effects in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I gave it to children a year old; to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have been costive for years, have taken and been regulated by it. Where the body is sound, it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed—they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it. On the contrary when that feeling is gone, you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that man ever listened to. No change of diet is necessary—eat the best you can get. I have likewise an herb, which, when simmered in sweet oil, dissolves Scrofulous swelling of the neck and under the ears. Price 50 cents.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adult, one table-spoonful per day. Children over eight years, desert-spoonful; directions can be made applicable to all constitutions, take enough to operate on the bowels twice a day.

A liberal discount made to those who buy to sell again. Apothecaries, &c., who would like to act as agents will please send in their orders.

AN EXTENSIVE CONNEXION AND General Eastern Advertising will make this Agency a Central Point, at which buyers locating in the West will find it their interest to procure information and make selections.

Owners of Real Estate

Will be particularly benefited by placing their lands with us for sale, as property is often sacrificed from the fact that its market value is unknown out of its immediate neighborhood.

Capitalists will find favorable opportunities of realizing large returns by investing in rapidly improving Western property.

Catalogues will be published from time to time, containing descriptions of property for sale. These will be delivered to applicants, gratis, or forwarded to any part of the country.

Property offered for sale will, for a small sum, be entered in our Catalogue and circulated gratis all over the country.

Buyers of the Illinois Central Railroad Lands can avail themselves of the knowledge and experience of the late Land Agent of the Company to supply the difficulty of making judicious selections.

Particular attention given to the Payment of Taxes, Locating Warrants, Examining Land, and to a General Land Agency business.

To facilitate the sale of lands extensive arrangements are being made with responsible Local Land Agents.

Parties at a distance wishing information or desiring to purchase, by addressing us may depend upon faithful and prompt attention.
